

President's Report

Inside this issue:

Happy Spring!!!!

One of my favorite Memes is – I wish I was a Disney Princess then small woodland animals would come and help me clean up my house! I hope that your Spring has started well and that those affected by the recent flooding have been able to recover.

The Legislature is back at work and, just as a reminder, as of April 1st there has been an 1% SALES TAX increase on all sales transactions. If you are interested in some further reading about the tax there is a 55 page text on the Louisiana Legislative Website. We are also monitoring any new bills that may affect Veterinary Practice. Lobbyist, Bud Courson, has been invaluable in keeping the lines of communication open in alerting us to legislation that could impact our profession. See the Legislative Section of the Newsletter for more information.

The Emergency Rule for "Office Use" of compounded medications is on its way to becoming a permanent rule change. After a public hearing by the board on April 19, 2016, and barring any unforeseen arguments, the rule should take affect and essentially states that the discretion to compound for Office Use by any compounding pharmacy is at the decision of that pharmacy. The State Board may not take action but there may be Federal Legislation that could affect the decision to Compound for Office Use. Dr. Kirk Ryan has been essential in seeing this ruling to fruition and if you see or speak to him, please express your gratitude. This is a rule that certainly affects all of us in our day to day practice lives.

A big LVMA WELCOME to two of our newest additions to our Board family. Dr. Amanda Perkins was elected the new District 8 Representative. She is the owner of The Cat Hospital in Metairie and we are looking forward to working with her and the insight and energy she will bring to the Board. For anyone who has had to contact the LVMA office in the last year, you may have spoken with Amber Perkins, who has done a fantastic job with the LVMA Board as well as the Walter J Ernest Foundation. Amber has taken an opportunity in Nashville, so we are pleased to announce the addition of Stephanie Karaty as the new Association Coordinator and Lauren Landry as her partner. We know she will do an outstanding job.

We are very excited about instituting the POWER of 10 Program in Louisiana. Dr. Dale Peyroux, Dr. Marc Bordelon and Executive Director, Bland O Connor returned in March from the initial training for this innovative program which has now been instituted in over 20 states. As an Association, we are always striving to meet membership needs and stay relevant to all generations. This program is a leadership development program for new graduates (typically within 7 years of graduation) and there are usually anywhere from 3-7 sessions over the course of a year. If you are interested in this program, you can find more information at ASVMAE website or you may contact the LVMA Office.

I would like to ask for your thoughts and prayers for two of our esteemed board members.

Dr. Patrick Thistlewaithe and Dr. Jim Rundell have both had to overcome health issues as of recent. We wish them continued recovery and health.

Thank you again for your dedication to this profession as well as your membership in the LVMA. Remember to ASK anyone you know that may not be a member to join—sometimes you have to ask 3 times J. We are here for you and we hope you have a wonderful, fruitful and safe Spring!

Many Blessings,

Selected Viral Dermatoses in Dogs

Stephen L. Lemarie, MS, DVM, Dipl. ACVD

The increase in social interaction in dogs associated with the growing popularity of dog parks and dog day care facilities has resulted in an increase in canine patients presenting with papilloma virus associated dermatoses.

Papillomaviruses are non-enveloped DNA viruses, which are transmitted by direct and indirect contact and specifically infect epithelial cells. Infection occurs at the site of damaged skin or mucous membranes with viral incubation lasting 1 to 2 months.

Papillomavirus is fairly stable in the environment and can survive for 63 days at 4° to 8° C or for 6 hours at 37° C.

Canine Oral Papilloma (CfPV-1)

Canine oral papilloma is a most often self-limited infectious disease that is normally confined to the mucosal tissue of the oral cavity or lips in young dogs. The disease occasionally produces papillomas on the conjunctiva and external nares.

Lesions start as smooth white papules or plaques and progress over 4 to 8 weeks to pedunculated or cauliflower-like hyperkeratotic masses. In most cases the lesions will regress in another 4 to 8 weeks. Regression is the result of the development of a cell-mediated immune response and animals typically develop solid immunity as a result of previous exposure to the virus. In some rare cases dogs appear to have a specific immune deficiency and lesions do not regress and are non-responsive to any form of treatment. Administration of immune suppressive/modulating drugs and chemotherapy can lead to the development of papillomavirus-associated lesions.

Cutaneous Inverted Papilloma (CfPV-1, CfPV-2, CfPV-6)

Cutaneous inverted papillomas present as a single mass or as multiple small masses. They are unpigmented, raised, firm and covered by skin with a central pore opening to the surface. Lesions are usually seen in dogs younger than 3 years, although older dogs may be affected. Masses are commonly found on the ventral abdomen and groin but may appear on the distal limbs, footpads and interdigital areas. These lesions do not typically regress and surgical removal is required in most cases for cure.

Canine Pigmented Plaques (CfPV- 3,4,5 & 8)

Canine pigmented plaques are found mainly in pugs, miniature schnauzers and French bulldogs during young adulthood. There may be an inherited autosomal dominant trait and immunocompromised individuals are suspected to have an increased incidence of this disease. Lesions are typically multiple and present as papules and plaques and are typically deeply pigmented and sometimes papillated. Lesions develop progressively over time and generally do not regress.

Treatment

In most cases, canine oral papillomas will resolve over time. In cases that fail to regress macerating or traumatizing lesions may help induce regression. Azithromycin at an oral dose of 10 mg/kg once daily for 10 days has been shown to sometimes be effective in the treatment of oral papillomas. The exact mechanism of action is unknown, human data indicates that azithromycin increases the production of interferon-stimulated genes in certain cell lines. Interferon exerts a biological action that protects cells from viral infection. Administration of IFN- α -2a at 1.5 to 2 million units SQ three times weekly has reported to be effective in severe cases of oral and cutaneous viral papillomatosis. Administration of feline recombinant interferon - ω at 1 million units SQ once daily for 5 days and repeated 14 days later has been effective in treating severe oral papillomas.

A message from Dr. Patrick Thistlethwaite, WJE President:

Changes in the way we do veterinary medicine can come from the Louisiana State and National Legislature. Watching out for you are the team of the LVMA Board, the Legislative Committee, and the paid firm of Courson & Nichols-our governmental relations experts or lobbyists.

If you hear of, are interested in, or are asked to participate in matters of interest to veterinarians and the LVMA, please call the main office. You can also contact your district Representative.

Don't forget, we are at LVMA.ORG.

WALTER J. ERNST VETERINARY MEMORIAL FOUNDATION

We as veterinarians do so much when a pet is gone to share in the grief. Some clients we miss dearly. Making a donation in a pet's memory or a person's memory is just another way to say "we care".

WJE continues to support the Louisiana Strategic Animal Response Team (LSART) and soon the LSART Veterinary Medical Corps.

Please consider to continue your memorial contributions to this foundation by visiting www.lvma.org and click on "Donate". A donation form can be downloaded or you may create an account and donate on line as well.
